As those of you who were watching sports events on television Saturday and Sunday know, the Arkansas-Teas game at Austin Saturday night will be carried by the ABC network (Channels 3 and 7).

While ABC gave no details but the bulletin announcement, the fact is the network's 1972 contract with the NCAA for college games calls for a departure from previous TV scheduling. In other years the TV college football schedule was fixed in advance for the entire season.

Obviously this had its disadvantages. A match that had exciting possibilities when the schedule was adopted in the Summer sometimes turned into disappointment when the actual TV show was aired deep into Autumn because one or both teams turned up with poor records.

Therefore in the 1972 season ABC obtained a concession from the college governing body. The network was permitted to end its fixed schedule with the Texas-Oklahoma contest and schedule "wild games" thereafter—that is, picking any two teams it chose, and announcing not later than Monday who would be televised the following Sunday.

Thus, Arkansas, which had been knocked out of TV coverage for 1972 because it declined to agree to moving the game with Texas into December, turns up as the lucky "wild game" partner in the game to be televised Saturday night at Austin—the very date ABC had originally rejected.

This fortunate development means that a lot of week-end excursions (if not to Austin) are going to be canceled—in favor of a good seat before a TV receiver.

Mrs. Kate Baler, our Circulation Dept. bookkeeper, turned up an oddity in the mail service Tuesday, Oct. 17. She received a letter from Camden the 17th but it was postmarked "Postal Service Oct. 18."

That is, she received the letter two days before it was mailed!

In all charity I wouldn't suggest that the Postal Service in order to improve its public image has resorted to tampering with the cancellation dating machine...

It was simply a postal employee's error in setting the cancellation date.

The same thing occurs in private offices only in reverse: An office worker uses the postage meter several days without remembering to change the machine's date.

In The Star office we try to make changing the date on the meter the first order of business each morning. It's advisable for every postage meter user to observe this rule—the Postal Service has authority to give you a warning if wrongly-dated mail is sent out from your office, on the theory that the Postal Service has trouble enough without being accused of mail delays that are fictional.

Years before we started using a postage meter I would marvel at form letters reaching me with a date 10 days or so earlier. Later on, of course, with a meter of our own I realized it was a fictional delay—an unthinking clerk had forgotten to change the meter date daily.

Sometimes you have to get out a quantity of mail which requires advance metering of envelopes. In this case you should leave the date blank. At least that's what I have done, on occasion—as, for instance, in the case of enclosing a postage-paid envelope for a reply, where the date of the return letter can't be known.

Miss your paper?

City Subscribers: If you fail to receive your Star please phone 777-3431 between 6 and 6:30 p.m.—Saturday before or by 5 p.m. and a carrier will deliver your paper.

Search for Rep. Boggs continuing

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Signals from an aircraft emergency locator beacon have been picked up by aircraft combing heavily timbered, mountainous areas of Southeast Alaska for a missing plane carrying House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three others.

The Coast Guard said the pilots of two jet-powered helicopters heard the signals twice some 10 miles west of this Alaska capital city on Tuesday, but there were notes of caution.

"We have experienced false alarms in the past," said a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

Cmdr. Paul Breed of Coast Guard headquarters in Juneau also cautioned against undue optimism.

"There was no indication it came from the missing aircraft," Breed said of the signal. "And it is not uncommon for one to get tripped accidentally."

There was also a report that an amateur radio operator in California had talked with someone in the Boggs plane Monday night, and that he had been told the aircraft had landed on a beach near Juneau.

The Cessna 310 in which Boggs and his companions left Anchorage Monday on a 3½-hour, 500-mile flight to Juneau was equipped with an emergency beacon, which activates on a crash.

With the 50-year-old Louisianan were Rep. Nick Begich, Alaska's only member of the House of Representatives; Russell Brown, 37, an aide to the 40-year-old Begich; and Don E. Jones, 38, the pilot.

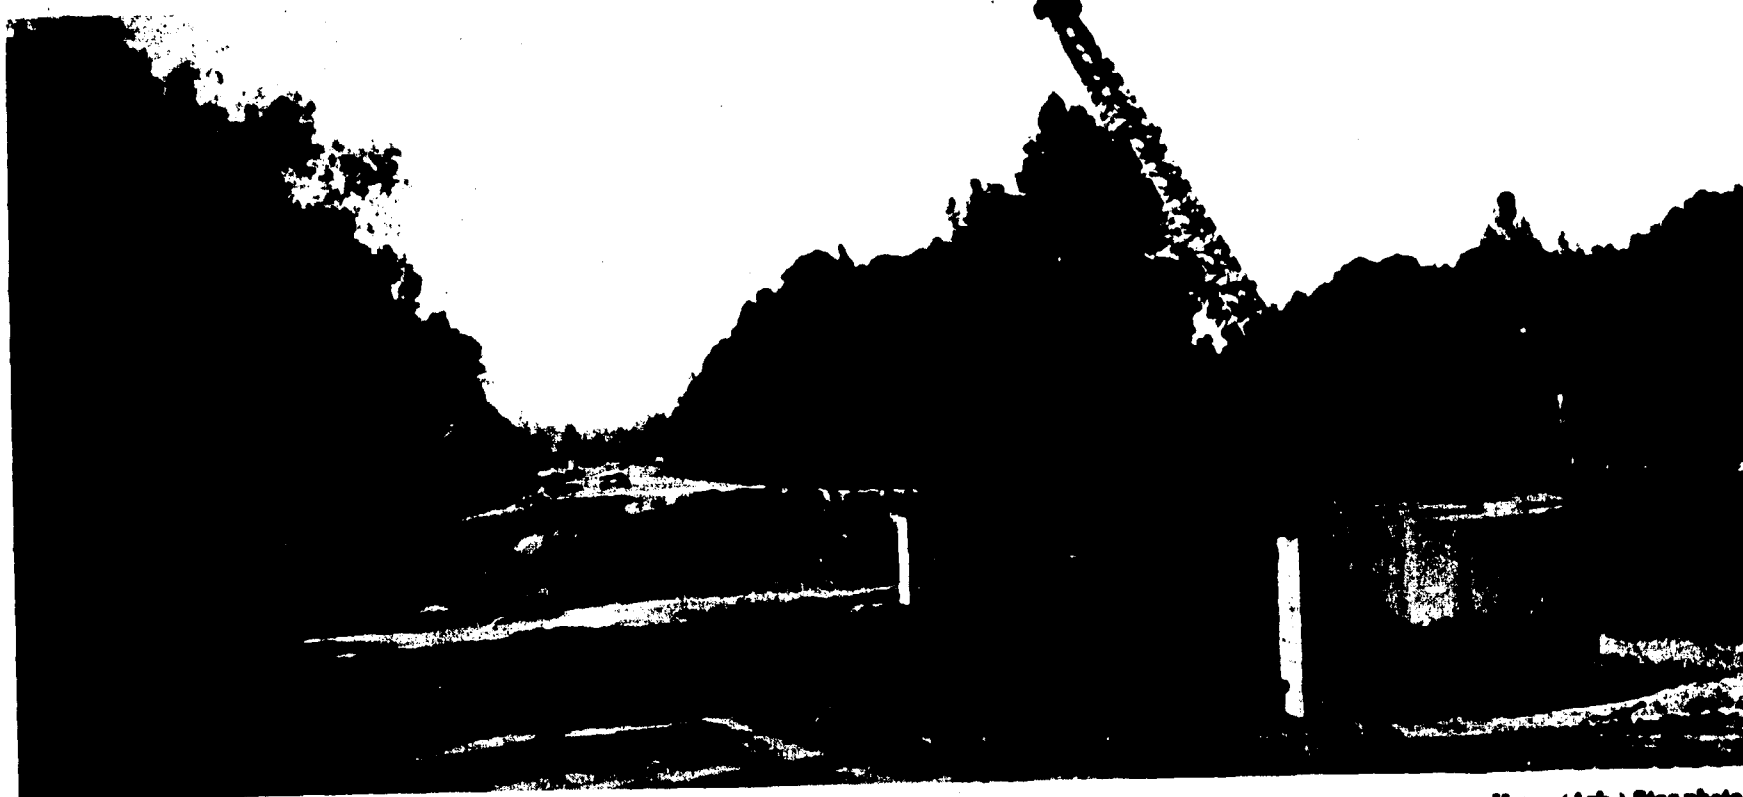

Boggs' wife Lindy and members of her family left Washington early today for Anchorage. Aides said they wanted to be on the scene.

Jones filed a flight plan by radio 12 minutes after leaving Anchorage, and that was the last word heard from the aircraft as it headed southeast through rainforest skies.

The Coast Guard said one of the emergency signals picked up by its pilots was "very strong" and lasted for some 40 minutes. The 'copter pilots also reported hearing a radio signal which lasted for only about 30 seconds.

Breed called the search area around Juneau "about as rugged as exists in the world. It goes from sea-level to over 15,000 feet in spots. It's notorious for its weather."

But the veteran Coast Guard search officer added, "A capable pilot could ditch a plane in many areas and survive."

Route change on Highway 19

Construction on a change of route on State Highway 19 six miles south of Prescott is underway; the project will cost the state more than $330,000. A mile-long stretch of road, featuring several wooden support bridges and a hairpin curve, is being bypassed by the new roadway.

Senate rebuffs Nixon on 2 fronts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has rebuffed President Nixon on two fronts, denying him unlimited authority to cut federal spending and then overriding his eleventh-hour veto of a water-pollution-control bill.

At 1 o'clock this morning, two hours after Nixon had slapped down the $34.6-billion antipollution authorization measure as "staggering, budget-wrecking," the Senate voted 52 to 12 to override him.

Soon after the House meets at noon today, Democratic leaders planned to try to win the necessary two-thirds margin to override and thus enact the measure over Nixon's objections.

Earlier Tuesday evening, the Senate voted to eliminate from a debt-limit-increase bill the $350-billion spending ceiling which Nixon had asked for the current fiscal year. The Senate last week had voted for the ceiling but balked at giving Nixon authority to make cuts in virtually any area he wished.

That legislation was sent back to conference with the House.

The water-pollution and spending-limit bills are the final obstacles to be cleared before the 92nd Congress could finally quit. Leaders said they were hopeful today would be the day.

The President served notice in his veto message that he would draw the spending issue in the closing weeks of the national political campaign.

"If this veto is not sustained ... let the issue be clearly drawn. As with the spending ceiling, so with this bill, a vote to sustain the veto is a vote against a tax increase."

"A vote to override the veto is a vote to increase the likelihood of higher taxes."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, floor manager for the antipollution bill, said the President was "just plain wrong" in his "budget-wrecking" charge.

"The only budget we have before us is his fiscal 1973 budget and the spending this bill provides for 1973 is $280 million," Muskie declared. "That will hardly bust the budget."

"Over the long run, this total amount of money is needed to do the job."

The Senate vote to kill the $350-billion spending ceiling may have been the death blow for that Nixon proposal.

However, Senate-House conferees still could come up with a compromise which would put tighter controls on the President's powers to make cuts to stay within the ceiling.

The House and Senate also sent to Nixon a continuing resolution to run the foreign-aid program through Feb. 28, 1973.

Clean water bill vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling the price tag "staggering," President Nixon has vetoed a clean-water bill and threatened to do the same for any other legislation exceeding his budget.

The Senate voted 51 to 12 early today to override the veto that was announced at the White House minutes before the midnight deadline, when the bill would have become law without his signature. A House vote expected today will determine whether the veto stands or falls.

Though the bill authorizes $24.6 billion over three years for a massive cleanup of the nation's waterways, it does not actually appropriate the money.

In his veto message, Nixon objected only to the legislation's cost and defined the issue in the thrif-in-government language of his campaign for re-election.

Aimed at totally wiping out water pollution by 1980, the bill authorizes funds for municipal sewage and waste-treatment systems and tightens controls over the discharge of industrial wastes into waterways.

Companies would be required to employ "the best available" controls by mid-1983.

Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern called the veto a "mean-spirited action by a President who has always put special interests before the public interest."

The White House chose to announce the veto moments after the Senate, failing to reach a compromise, threw out the $350-billion spending lid Nixon had requested. The President had sought unrestricted powers to cut federal programs without congressional intervention. He said his aim was to hold spending down to that level during the current fiscal year.

The Senate balked at granting Nixon such unlimited budget-cutting authority.

The President said his veto was consistent with his motive for seeking the spending ceiling, and in the language he has employed in the campaign, he said "a vote to sustain the veto is a vote against a tax increase; a vote to override the veto is a vote to increase the likelihood of higher taxes."

Defeat of the spending-ceiling measure may cause Nixon to veto other bills, said John Ehrlichman, the President's domestic-affairs adviser, and Caspar W. Weinberger, director of the Office of Management and Budget. The two briefed newsmen on the veto and its implications.

Ehrlichman said one likely candidate for a veto is the $30.5-billion appropriation bill for the bulk of the government's social programs. Nixon vetoed it once in August.

Among the clean-water bill's key features:

—At full funding, contingent upon passage of separate legislation, the measure would channel $0.7 billion in fiscal year 1973, $0.85 billion in 1974, and $1.65 billion in 1975 into the pollution fight.

—Municipalities would be eligible for $18 billion in federal funds for waste-treatment plants and sewage systems.

Springhill man dies at Millwood

Hempstead County Sheriff Henry Sinyard said today Shelby B. Bridwell, age 63, of Springhill, La. collapsed and died early today of an apparent heart attack while at the Saratoga Landing at Millwood Lake. A brother, L. B. Bridwell of Emerson, was with him when the attack occurred Sinyard said.

United Fund Drive kicked off

More than 25 business and civic leaders met early today at the Town and Country Restaurant for the kick-off breakfast of the 1973 United Fund Drive in Hempstead County.

President Dick Moore said the 1973 budget for the county is $35,200 and vowed "to make this goal." Moore said that a concentrated drive of about two weeks would be held, but stated that "more than two weeks will be allotted for accumulation of the funds."

"We will continue to campaign for funds until the goal is reached," he stated.

Agencies participating in the 1973 campaign include Arkansas Association for Mental Health, Boy Scouts, Girls Scouts, American Red Cross, Salvation Army, The Arthritis Foundation, Hope schools, United Service Organization, Inc., United Cerebral Palsy, National Travelers Aid, Southside Child Development Center, underprivileged children and day care center, and funds for local use (cancer and heart).

Officers for the drive, in addition to Moore, are as follows:

Dr. Don Freel, First Vice President; Jimmy Lester, Second Vice President; Wayne Shaw, Third Vice President; Velora Bright, treasurer; and B.N. Holt, secretary.

Glasgow acquitted in border smuggling case

By GARY GARRISON
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A federal court jury of nine men and three women took just over two hours to find a former Arkansas deputy attorney general innocent of marijuana smuggling charges.

Roger Allen Glasgow, 30, of Little Rock, was being tried on federal charges of illegally importing about 23 pounds of marijuana into the United States from Mexico and with possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute it.

The jury began deliberations at 5:32 p.m. Tuesday and filed back into the courtroom at 7:45 p.m.

A clerk read the verdict as Glasgow stood, facing the jury with his wife seated nearby and several friends and relatives in the courtroom.

Glasgow's facial expression never changed as the verdict was read. His wife, Jean, 24, lowered her head for a moment and appeared to sob briefly, but moments later she joined jubilant relatives and friends in a round of hand shaking.

"Of course, I am extremely relieved and pleased with the verdict of the jury," Glasgow told reporters.

"I would like to thank many, many friends and supporters who have had confidence in me," he continued.

Glasgow and his wife were returning from a vacation trip to the interior of Mexico Aug. 25 when they were arrested at the International Bridge here after customs agents said they found about 23 pounds of marijuana concealed beneath the back seat of the automobile.

Glasgow, who has since left the state job to enter private law practice in Little Rock, claimed from the time of his arrest that the marijuana had been "planted" there and said he knew nothing about how it got there.

Glasgow, under cross examination by U.S. Atty. Gen. A. Gonzalez, admitted Tuesday he had smoked part of a single marijuana cigarette on two occasions.

He explained he was working on revision of some Arkansas criminal laws, had heard and read conflicting reports about marijuana use and said "I simply wanted to find out for myself."

He had testified earlier on direct examination that he had seen marijuana only in a display case.

Gonzalez said in his closing argument "why did Mr. Glasgow lie when he said he had only seen marijuana once?"

"Tell Mr. Glasgow he was an outstanding young man before he was glibbed and lost and find him guilty," Gonzalez said in closing arguments.

"This case cries out for a verdict of not guilty," said defense lawyer Eduardo Rodriguez of Brownsville.

Defense lawyer Thomas G. Sharpe Jr. of Brownsville told the jurors Glasgow had worked his way through high school and college, had served on the Arkansas constitutional convention, served as deputy attorney and has been hired by a well known law firm at Little Rock.

"Would he throw it all away in one day of his life," Sharpe said.

Body of fourth workman is found in debris of bridge

By STEVE MONTIEL
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The body of a fourth workman entombed in a 100-ton block of cement was found today by rescue workers with jackhammers who ripped through debris of a fallen 100-foot-high freeway bridge section.

Three other construction workers were found dead among timbers and steel beams earlier by rescue workers who swarmed over the wreckage despite the threat that other parts of the bridge might collapse on top of them.

Two other workmen were missing, and authorities feared they also may have been trapped in cement spilled when the 75-foot-long section of the new Foothill Freeway bridge plunged into a ravine Tuesday.

Twenty-one other workers were injured, six critically.

Concrete was being poured into wooden forms when the center section of the north side of the bridge gave way, cascading into the ravine about two miles north of the Rose Bowl. The framework of the south side of the giant bridge, poured earlier, remained intact.

Jimmy Fultz, 45, a workman who was standing on an adjacent span when the north side collapsed, said, "I heard it go whom. I ran back from where I was working. Those guys working on the deck in the center had no chance. I saw some of them go down with it all."

More than 300 men, most of them volunteer construction workers, worked through the night under a battery of powerful floodlights. Steel girders and large planks of lumber dangled menacingly from the tattered edges of the bridge above them.

The cause of Tuesday's collapse was not immediately determined, but police said it appeared that metal beams supporting the concrete forms on the north side failed to hold the additional weight when the concrete was poured.

Treaty ends family feud

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Two wealthy Brazilians signed a treaty Tuesday agreeing to end a 23-year-old vendetta that has taken 10 lives in northeast Brazil.

Jose Aires de Alencar and Jose Sampaio signed the pact in the presence of an army representative, Lt. Col. Ivo Barbosa. The army intervened after pacification efforts by police, the state governor and a TV star failed.

The feud between the Alencar and Sampaio families began in 1949 in Exu, a little town of less than 5,000 people in the interior of Pernambuco state. Jose Aires de Alencar shot and killed Romao Sampaio Filho, a member of a rival political party.

Within hours Sampaio's son Aristides, with the help of a friend, killed Jose Aires' father. Had he gotten the murderer, the killing might have stopped there. But by getting the wrong man, he put a vicious retaliatory process in motion.

Through the years the family war raged. It became increasingly difficult to determine who should be killed in revenge for whose death because both families also took on hired gunmen.

Exu's business began to fall off because the market place was no longer safe. In desperation, after two hired gunmen killed a Sampaio on May 5, the governor of Pernambuco fired Exu's entire police force and sent a contingent of state police into the town. But the two families were warming up their political machines for municipal elections in November, and on June 18 an Alencar was killed.

The governor appealed to singing star Luiz Gonzaga, an Exu native. He returned to his hometown and appealed to leaders of the two feuding families.

Polls differ in 'point spread'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last Sunday, top aides of Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign made available the result of the latest California sampling by their own pollster, Patrick Caddell, showing President Nixon with a three-point lead in the nation's largest state.

A day later, the independent Field Poll came out, showing Nixon with a 14-point lead. McGovern aides, while challenging the results, conceded privately that the Field results were a psychological setback.

In 1972, more than in any previous national election, politicians and reporters are taking polls, scrutinizing the results and making comparisons, though knowing the whole exercise has several fatal flaws.

None of the polls purport to show more than the standing on the day of the sampling. The in-home interviewers decry the telephone pollsters and vice versa. And the McGovern camp, whose polls were relatively accurate in the spring, can't understand the disparity in the fall and the inclination of many to dismiss their results as self-serving.

In California, for example, where Caddell's polling between Oct. 9 and 11 showed Nixon with a 45-42 lead, Field's polling in the first week of October put the President ahead 50 to 36, compared with a 48-41 lead two months earlier.

An independent poll in late September by Dorothy Corey showed Nixon's lead at approximately 43 to 37. And the McGovern camp insisted a recent Republican poll actually showed Nixon a point behind.

The same pattern shows up elsewhere.

In Michigan, where the most recent Detroit News poll gave Nixon a 50-37 lead, Caddell's findings showed a nine-point swing from Nixon to McGovern since last August. Then, Nixon led 57 to 31; now, the tally is 48 to 48.

At the same time, the Yankelevich poll for The New York Times and Time magazine showed the President with a 50-38 lead in a state he lost four years ago.

Similarly, in Illinois, Yankelevich's figures were 60 to 34 for Nixon. Caddell's were 51 to 34 for the President, compared with an earlier tally of 63 to 27.

In New York, Yankelevich's sampling showed Nixon with a lopsided 50-33 lead in another state he had never before carried. Caddell, however, put the gap at only 50 to 38. McGovern aides noted that, in neither case, did Nixon have more than 50 per cent.

In every case, the McGovern polls showed the Democratic candidate behind—but by a smaller degree than the independent polls and within the range that McGovern aides like to call "striking distance."

At the same time, the national polls were showing very little change in the big Nixon lead, a major disappointment to McGovern aides who had talked about moving to within 15 points of the President by early October and to within 5 points later in the month.

The new Gallup Poll showed Nixon's August lead of 44 to 38 had only dropped eight points to 40 to 34. The latest Yankelevich figures were 57 to 27.

The McGovern camp notes, however, that the polls were all taken before McGovern's Oct. 10 Vietnam speech, which set off increased financial contributions that aides hope will pre-empt a pickup in his support.

One of the main consolations for the McGovern camp was that the White House is disinclined to think that the election will be as lopsided as polls currently show.

Many national polls tend to obscure state-by-state differences under which some of the more optimistic McGovern aides claim their candidate could somehow piece together an electoral vote majority of the needed 270 with narrow victories in big states while losing the overall popular vote because of massive defeats in smaller states.

Cod war heating up as ships collide

LONDON (AP) — A British trawler was reported rammed by an Icelandic gunboat inside Iceland's disputed 50-mile fishing limit, the British Ministry of Agriculture said today.

The trawler was the 427-ton Aldershot. She had earlier reported an Icelandic gunboat tried to slash the lines of her trawling nets.

A ministry spokesman said the Aldershot was holed near the stern by the impact. No casualties were reported.

"We have been told she suffered a gash nearly four feet across just above her water line," the spokesman said.

The gunboat rammed the trawler in a maneuver apparently aimed at cutting the Aldershot's lines, the ministry said.

The Icelandic Coast Guard had a different version. It said the Aldershot backed into the gunboat Aegir and other trawlers steamed up and tried to ram the gunboat. A spokesman said the Aegir had minor damage and the Aldershot sprang a leak.

Britain prepared a strong protest to Iceland over attacks by gunboats on British fishing vessels in the disputed waters over the past two days.

The attacks, according to information here, involved firing shots across the bows of one British trawler and cutting the lines on another.

The incidents are due to the dispute between Britain and Iceland over the extent of Iceland's territorial fishing limits.

Breakfast fetes Mrs. Harden

The former Miss Kay Coleman, recent bride of Tommy Harden, was feted with a breakfast at The Heritage House. Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Otis A. Blackwood, Fulton.

The honoree wore a yellow knit frock and pinned a corsage of white carnations with sunburst ribbons at her shoulder. The fifteen guests included Mrs. N.B. Coleman and Mrs. Thomas Harden, mothers of the couple who were presented corsages of yellow and orange carnations. They were seated at a table centered with an arrangement of carnations and mums in sunburst colors with autumn leaves. Flanking the centerpiece on either side were nosegays of the same flowers interspersed with velvet fall leaves.

Places were marked with place cards decorated with wedding bells. The honoree's place was also marked with a gift of cut glass crystal.

The registry also held an arrangement of fall flowers.

SARAH MARGARET VINSON

Miss Vinson to marry Mr. Short

The Rev. and Mrs. Everett M. Vinson of Monticello announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sarah Margaret, to Russell Ellsworth Short, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt L. Short of Little Rock.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Hope High School. She will receive an accounting and economics degree from Hendrix College in December.

Mr. Short attended the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville and is a senior Marketing major at UALR. He is the physical education director at Trinity Cathedral School.

The couple will be married December 29 in St. Paul United Methodist Church in Little Rock.

Clean Preteens

Clean simple lines are in store even for the preteen set. Fitted high-waisted pants are neatly topped with floral or plaid blazers. Short pinafore jumpers add a bit of charm to straight leg pants and skinny rib turtle-necks. And long tailored skirts are teamed with tailored blouses with white collar and cuffs.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

If you happen to have one of the modern single-lever faucets in your kitchen or bathroom, you don't have to worry about changing washers, because it doesn't have one.

But the very large majority of houses still have the ordinary compression faucets, with separate hot and cold water taps. That means the washer in each faucet eventually wears down and needs replacing.

The days are gone when you could get a washer changed for a dollar or two. In fact, regardless of the charge, it's difficult even to get a plumber for such a small job. And there's no reason to do so. Changing a faucet washer is within the capability of anyone.

The first step is to turn off the water leading to the faucet. Most faucets have cut-off valves underneath the sink, one for the hot water, one for the cold. Turning the valve clockwise shuts off the water. If you have a very old sink with no such visible valves, the water to the line must be shut off, or, if you don't know where it is (you should), the valve must be closed at the point where the water line enters the house.

After opening the faucet handle all the way, the stem can be lifted out or screwed out. Where there is a nut near the handle, it should be loosened with a wrench after covering it with adhesive tape to prevent scratches. At the bottom of the stem you will find a chewed-up washer held in place by a screw. Remove it. If the screw is so banged up that you can't get it out with a screwdriver, grip the top of it with pliers and turn it counterclockwise.

Replace the washer with one of the same size and put back everything in the reverse order in which it was removed.

The Readers Always Write..

DEAR HELEN:

"Curious," the tired husband, wondered how young parents ever find the time or energy for affairs. You wondered, too, and asked "samplers" whether hanky-panky was really worth the effort.

I'm a "sampler." My answer (and I'm quick to say it's not for everyone!) is "Yes!"

I have two children, one a pre-schooler. I started my affair five years ago when our oldest was in kindergarten. It continues. Maybe I'm a freak, but I've made the best of two worlds and, outside of the guilt I feel, and the worry over being found out, I think my "other man" and I have done our best to have an affair responsibly. Actually, it has helped both our marriages.

Yes, I've had qualms and doubts: "What will this do to my marriage?" "To my lover's marriage?" He and I agreed to put our spouses and families first, which averted the temptation to run away or something equally foolish, such as being jealous or possessive. Our relationship is much more than merely physical. We are friends first.

Our marriages take the day-to-day buffeting — the total honesty of constant intimacy; hair curlers, bathrobes, two-day beards and undershirts. A few hours every few weeks with a lover gives respite from the routine. He doesn't see my ungroomed self. With him I can be the person I want most to be, and she's real too. I go home purring like a kitten—more patient with the kids, more relaxed and loving with my husband—he never lacks for love.

What do I get that I don't have at home? Excitement of the clandestine, I suppose, in part. But more: My lover pours out his heart to me, lets me comfort him. My husband doesn't want to "burden" me.

Yes, it takes energy and subterfuge. It takes time and lots of love—for both men. Of these, only the subterfuge saddens me—and that's a terrible minus!

As for energy, I've benefited: doing all I need to do at home in LESS time, and having cut enough calories to gratefully lose 20 pounds. I've learned to plan my time so that my fewer family hours are more wisely spent. And love? Who can't benefit by the greater capacity to bestow and receive love? The kind of love that asks, "What can I do for my beloveds?"

My husband and daughters may never know, but my extra measure of good spirits comes from my equivalent of "going out to buy a hat"—which doesn't even cost like a hat does!

Really, my family is more strengthened that weakened by my affair.—HAPPY SAMPLER FROM OHIO

DEAR HELEN:

Your letter supports the theories of numerous modern psychologists who say that, in isolated instances, an affair can reinforce a marriage. But think how fast two marriages might disintegrate, were those secret meetings exposed.

As you added in a "personal" postscript: "Last this letter serve as encouragement to others to do as I've done, please put in your remarks a big strong caution. We're taking a grave risk! I pray every hour for our marriages. Please pray for me too."

Not only risk but potential misery is involved here—for yourselves, your mates and families. I doubt that everyone touched by this affair could be as free of jealousy and possessiveness as you are.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Curious" is right: an affair is harder to manage than it's worth. One lie breeds another. I was always one step ahead of being found out. And then this "wonderful, understanding woman" who soothed away my worries turned into a demanding dame who expected to become my wife.

I won't stray again. I'm only thankful I came to my senses in time.—HAPPILY FAITHFUL AGAIN

October Porkfest

Bountiful Barbecued Pork Roast

October Porkfest is a great time to discover how pork fits any taste.

Especially since today's pork is produced for the most in nutrition. Contains three times as much thiamin (nerve food) as any other meat, too. And it has more protein, less fat and fewer calories. Plus it's more digestible.

Don't forget either that Bountiful Barbecued Pork Roast, like all pork dishes, takes on even more flavor and versatility when you sauce to taste. Especially if you use either Kraft regular, hickory smoke, onion bits, garlic or hot style barbecue sauce.

Bountiful Barbecued Pork Roast

1 4- to 5-lb. pork loin roast

¾ cup Kraft Barbecue Sauce

1 10-oz. jar Kraft Pure Apple Jelly

1 1-lb. can small whole potatoes, drained

1 1-lb. can small whole carrots, drained

1 1-lb. jar small whole onions, drained

Place meat, fat-side up, on rack in open pan. Roast at 325° 2½ to 3 hours or until meat thermometer registers 170°. During the last half hour of roasting, add potatoes, carrots and onions. Combine barbecue sauce and jelly; simmer over low heat. Use to baste roast and vegetables during last half hour. Serve with remaining sauce.

REPHAN'S

HOPE, ARKANSAS

So long, teeth; hello, Hollywood Spitz extracting self from dental career

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
(First of Two Parts.)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — (NEA)—It's clear now. Mark Spitz, who once wanted to be a dentist, won't be drilling teeth in the near future—if ever. He'll be capitalizing on his feats as the greatest swimmer in the history of the world.

Yeah, that's Mark Spitz over there in blue jeans and black sneakers, slouching like an imitation Joe Namath, so that he doesn't look six feet tall. His face is swarthy and that mustache really does make him look like Omar Sharif.

The ladies of the Arden Hills Swim and Tennis Club, in their white court outfits and bronzed legs, are in a gaggle around him. Although they've known Mark since he was nine years old, they're delighted with the new perspective they're getting.

"A movie star, yet."

"I'll have to get your autograph."

He droops his head and traces the surface of the concrete sidewalk with his toes.

He's not much in the way of personality, although his teeth are white and even and the smile is nice enough. The handshake is limp and he's not going to give much of himself. A British journalist knocking on Spitz's door recently was told that, yes, he could get a story from Mark but for $10,000.

This is Mark's home ground. He's comfortable because he knows the surroundings. The tall row of Italian poplars stands sentry over the stretch of watered green lawn and shady old oaks. And in one of the two big swimming pools which break up the expanse, the sky-reflected blue water is dappled with white foam.

A 13-year-old girl named Sandy Johnson is churning endless laps the length of the pool, her feet bound together with a kiddie-car-sized black rubber tube. She's one of Sherman Chavoort's proteges, just as Mark was when he came here 13 years ago, at the age of 9.

"Builds up the arm strength," says Sherman, scarcely watching her. Mark, next to him as a camera clicks, listens. Quiet. With Sherm, Mark feels a sense of protection. Chavoort is the buffer against the sudden clamor of being a celebrity, people trying to get at him.

"I can be the guy," says Sperm. "to tell people to go to hell if they're bugging him. Mark has to be careful of his image, even if they're rude to him."

Ah yes, image — the kind that's going to make him an instant millionaire because never in Olympic competition has anyone been as wildly successful as Mark Spitz, the oddly diffident young man whose special skill is propelling himself through water.

"Take a shower with me.

Sherm. Mark would say when he was away from the pool in Munich.

Or, "Let's go to breakfast together, Sperm."

"He wanted company," says Chavoort, "somebody he knew or depended on. If you're interviewing him, he'd want me next to him."

"When I get nervous," shrugs Chavoort, who is 58 years old, "I start sucking my thumb. Remember, he's only 22 years old. He tells me things he'd never tell you."

Sherman Chavoort (pronounced shuh-VOOR), who was the coach of the United States Olympic women's swim team in Munich, is not only Mark Spitz's personal coach, he is also his friend.

From his two pools at the Arden Hills club, emerged Debbie Meyer, Mike Burton and Spitz to win a total of 15 gold medals in the last two Olympics.

Chavoort can hardly swim himself. His belly hangs over his belt. He speaks in a raspy voice, staccato style.

Three times a day, the mailman dumps a basketful of letters in a corner of Chavoort's little office. They're piling up and spilling over, unopened. Most of the envelopes have flowery borders and are addressed in dainty script, all to Mark Spitz.

THE SWIM STARS OF THE LAST TWO OLYMPICS BOTH CAME UNDER THE WATCHFUL THUMB OF COACH SHERM CHAVOORT

Rain halts third series game

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's and Cincinnati Reds were faced with another possibility of rain from the worst weather in the Bay area in 10 years as they prepared to play the third game of the World Series tonight.

The last time it rained as hard in the area was during the 1962 series when the San Francisco Giants and New York Yankees waited three days to play a baseball game.

The A's and Reds hope that lightning doesn't strike twice.

"The rain didn't help us—I wanted to play," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson after Tuesday night's scheduled game was postponed by a hail and rain storm.

And a chance of showers was forecast for tonight.

"I was disappointed," said Cincinnati starting pitcher Jack Billingham, who was ready for "the most important game of my life."

Oakland manager Dick Williams, who said his pitching rotation would have to be re-evaluated if another rainout occurred, took the delay philosophically.

"We're still 2-up," said Williams, whose American League champions hold a 2-0 lead in this best-of-seven-game series.

Billingham and Oakland's John "Blue Moon" Odom had finished their warmup and were prepared to start Tuesday night when heavy rains struck the coliseum.

Umbrellas sprouted immediately. The crowd of 50,000 sighed and the groundskeepers, who had worked hard to whip the beleaguered field into shape, went into action. They blanketed the infield with tarpaulin, but it was useless.

The rain picked up momentum and then hail stones began falling. Meanwhile, the sun shone a few hundred yards away from the ballpark and skies were blue and pink.

Out came baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to make the final judgment. The bare-headed Kuhn trudged through the outfield slop with a party of followers and decided it was impossible to play ball.

But he didn't tell the managers.

"The first time I knew that the game was postponed was when I heard it over the public address system," said Williams with a grin.

Kuhn, however, did tell the reporters.

"I went out and took a look at the field with the senior umpires," said the commissioner. "It was perfectly apparent that the amount of water on the field made it totally unplayable for baseball. In some places, water was over the shoetops and on almost every step, you sink into the turf."

The more weight I get the stronger I get and the faster I run," he says. "But, when I try to put it on I lose it, so I just quit worrying about it."

Morton weighed 160 pounds as a freshman two years ago. Now, he's up to 180 and would like to reach 190.

Morton, considered more of a speedster than a hard-working tailback when he first arrived at Fayetteville, threw his 180 pounds into the Baylor defense 34 times Saturday for 157 yards. For his performance, Morton was named Offensive Player of the Week in the Southwest Conference by The Associated Press.

"I'm not trying to use my speed as much as I did last year," Morton said. "I am trying to improve on the inside. I want to be a harder runner to bring down than just speed."

Morton said he was surprised when informed in the locker room that he had carried the ball 34 times.

"I thought I had carried 20-something," he said. "I wasn't really tired. The most I had ever carried before this year was 24 times."

Morton said he was also surprised that he had gained 157 yards until he considered the number of attempts. "If you carry that many times you should gain some yardage," he said.

Morton's 157 yards is the ninth best one-game rushing total on the Arkansas record books and his 34 carries ranks fourth. The Baylor game was the sixth time he had rushed for more than 100 yards, placing him second in that category to Bill Burnett who topped the 100-yard mark eight times as a Razorback.

For the season, Morton has carried 113 times for 559 yards—second in the conference. After catching three passes for 43 yards against Baylor, Morton ranks second in the conference in tandem offense (rushing and receiving).

"He has tremendous explosiveness," says Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "His Success was 'just luck' Reid says

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mike Reid would be a cinch to win the National Football League's Most-Most-Player-of-the-Week award, if there were such a thing.

The defensive tackle of the Cincinnati Bengals sacked Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson five times, made five other unassisted tackles and batted down a crucial pass at a most crucial time. Still, he attributed some of his success to luck.

"How many times you get to the quarterback is determined greatly on effort and ability—but also on luck," he said. "It is just happening to be at the right place at the right time, knowing when to make an inside move to beat the guard and knowing the center won't be there waiting."

There is no modesty award—but there is The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week selection. And for his performance in leading the Bengals to a 23-16 upset of the Chiefs last Sunday, Reid got that award instead. Other nominees were safety Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins and tackle Jethro Pugh of the Dallas Cowboys.

"That's quite a surprise," Reid said when told he'd been picked. "Something like that really never entered my mind. A thing like that you don't really expect in the early part of your career," the three-year pro from Penn State added.

Reid hesitated to offer any opinion on just how well he played. But Paul Brown had no such reservations. "It was as fine an effort by a defensive lineman as I've ever seen," said the man who has been seeing them for 36 years as a coach.

Portland upsets Milwaukee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sidney Wicks threw in six vital points in the past two minutes and gave the Portland Trail Blazers an upset 111-106 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Association.

The Bucks, down by 20 points in the third quarter of the game at Portland Tuesday night, rallied to go ahead at 104-105 on the 40-point performance of Kareem Abdul Jabbar. After Jabbar's two free throws put the Bucks ahead Wicks sank a 20-foot jumper and another one from 25 feet out to climax the Blazers' first victory of the season.

Wicks, who finished with 33 points, later converted two free throws to complete the Blazer scoring.

Sooners are picked over Buffaloes

NEW YORK (AP) — "The national championship hasn't been decided yet!"

That was the quick retort from Coach Eddie Crowder this week when someone implied that Colorado's national championship hopes had been terminated by an early-season loss to Oklahoma State.

Crowder gets a chance to prove the skeptics wrong Saturday when his ninth-ranked Buffaloes entertain second-rated Oklahoma in a key Big Eight test.

"I think Oklahoma is better offensively than last year, mostly because of the momentum and confidence they've gained," Mike says, noting that the Sooners set national records in 1971 for rushing and total offense. "A year ago at this time, they were still feeling their way into confidence, so to speak."

Oklahoma's defense isn't bad, either—the Sooners are the only major team that hasn't allowed a touchdown this season. Coach Chuck Fairbanks called last week's 27-0 triumph over Texas in which the Longhorns were held to 73 yards on the ground "the best effort of any defensive team I've been associated with, either playing or coaching."

No stars, just good players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"There are no stars on this team, just a good bunch of players."

Eddie Shack was talking of the Pittsburgh Penguins after they had blanked the New York Islanders 5-4 in the National Hockey League Tuesday night for their fourth victory in five games.

"We've had our ups and downs and so far this season we've been up," commented Red Kelly, the Penguins coach.

Woman of the Year

Miss Jack Porter was named B & PW Woman of the Year at the Hope B & PW Club kick-off breakfast for National Business Women's Week Oct. 15-22. This award of merit, presented to Miss Porter by Miss Charlene Wiggins, club president, is presented by the Arkansas Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club in recognition of her outstanding work in behalf of her club, her church, and her community.

A past president of the Hope club, Miss Porter was born in Hope, and is a member of The First Presbyterian Church, now serving as treasurer of The Women's Bible Class and Circle No. 4.

She graduated from Hope High School, entered business as bookkeeper for Southern Grain & Produce Co., several years later joined the firm Patterson's Dept. Store, and is presently employed at Ladies Specialty Shop. She is a Past Matron of Hope Chapter No. 338 Order of the Eastern Star, and is now serving her 34th year as secretary.

B & PW Club holds kick-off breakfast

Virginia Hoemer, Chairman of National Business Women's Week of the local B & PW Club was in charge of the kick-off breakfast for National Business Women's week October 15-22, at the Heritage House Monday morning at 7 o'clock. Twenty eight members were greeted at the door by Johnny Applesed, (portrayed) by Guy Griggs, and presented a bag of acorns and was asked to plant these seeds to "save nature—save humanity."

Charlene Wiggins, president, introduced Guy Griggs, with the Housing Authority of the City of Hope, who spoke to the group about "Up Grading - Up Town." Diagrams and charts showing changes of the main four blocks of Hope were discussed by Griggs.

Miss Jack Porter was presented the B & PW woman of the year award by Norma Jean Delaney.

Martha Stephenson gave the invocation.

Essay on Vietnamization finally comes to surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — Months before President Nguyen Van Thieu cracked down on his political opposition in South Vietnam, top Nixon administration planners received an analysis that recommended the United States stop pressuring the Saigon government "to conform to abstract standards of Western democracy."

"The GVN (government of Vietnam) can afford, under wartime conditions, to pursue authoritarian policies in its dealings with members of the articulate and vociferous urban political elites who, with few exceptions, lack genuine popular support and are unwilling to make sacrifices for the common good," the study said.

The study, prepared by the RAND Corp., was sent to the Pentagon as an unclassified document in March 1971 but never released. A copy was obtained recently by The Associated Press.

Sources familiar with the study said it received attention from top administration officials, including Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's advisor for national security affairs.

A year after the analysis went to the Pentagon, Thieu was faced with a communist military offensive. He ordered the arrests of thousands of alleged subversives, suspended local elections and tightened restrictions on the press.

Called "An Essay on Vietnamization," the study was written by Guy J. Pauker, a senior RAND analyst with years of experience in Vietnam and Indonesia.

In his essay, Pauker argued that Vietnamization offers the best opportunity for early American disengagement from Vietnam. The administration policy seeks to strengthen the South Vietnamese government to a point where it can resist communist pressure without direct U.S. military involvement.

Peace negotiations and Vietnamization "cannot be pursued simultaneously, with equal chances of success," Pauker wrote.

He recommended that the Saigon government build support among the rural masses "by demonstrating that, unlike the communists, it is able and willing to offer tangible, immediate benefits to the masses."

Election planned in Korea

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park, now ruling South Korea under martial law, today promised a presidential election this year if the voters accept the new constitution he is planning.

The changes he plans were not spelled out. But in declaring martial law Tuesday he said they were needed for the transition period from Cold War to detente with the Communist countries, and the political parties could not be trusted to achieve them.

Park said he would announce the constitutional changes on Oct. 27 and hold a referendum on them a month later.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray made clear the Nixon administration's displeasure with Park's return to martial law. He said the United States was "not consulted about the decision and quite obviously" is "not associated with it."

Commemorative plaque

Mrs. Henry Burke, president of the Mary-Martha Class of the First United Methodist Church of Hope presents a commemorative plate to Rev. Norris Steele, pastor of the church. The plate pictures the current sanctuary with a short history on the back. Construction of the new sanctuary is shown in the background. Interested persons who would like to purchase a plate will find them available at a bazaar, luncheon, and bake sale held by the women of the First United Methodist Church from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) or from any member of the Mary-Martha Class.

2.7 million workers

Walk softly in election year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam's 2.7 million employees tread a fine line during the campaign season.

For the most part, says the man who's in charge of catching them when they slip, they stay well within the rules, perhaps sporting a campaign button or occasionally speaking out for a candidate.

But a few take the plunge into the partisan activity forbidden by law—soliciting funds for a candidate, stuffing envelopes for him, engaging in the whole range of campaign activity.

Some are flouting the law openly in hopes of proving it an unconstitutional infringement upon the employees' right.

"The real aggravating cases are those who say they're violating the act and want to challenge it," said George Koutras, an assistant general counsel of the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

In an interview, Koutras described the workers' response this year to the restrictions of the Hatch Act, a 1939 law designed to inoculate federal employees against the fever of partisan politics.

"Many federal employees just don't know that they're not supposed to campaign for candidates, while others know it and do it anyway," Koutras said.

He cited a legal challenge filed by two federal employees in California who reportedly worked openly for Sen. George McGovern's primary campaign.

The Supreme Court upheld the act in 1947 but is expected to take another look following a 2-1 decision by a U.S. District Court last July that it is unconstitutional.

In addition to federal workers, the act also applies to thousands of state and local government employees who work for agencies receiving federal funds.

Few federal workers violate the Hatch Act, Koutras said. From Jan. 1 to Sept. 15 of this year, he added, 126 allegations of Hatch Act violations were received by the Civil Service Commission.

The Hatch Act allows workers to wear campaign buttons and speak for or against a candidate or partisan issue, unless their respective agencies forbid it. Employees are allowed also to get involved in nonpartisan contests and even seek office in nonpartisan races. But they can't legally stuff envelopes, solicit money or votes or otherwise participate in a partisan campaign.

The Civil Service Commission can impose penalties ranging from a 30-day suspension without pay to dismissal from office.

Presidential appointees are exempt from the act, as are most state and local elected officials. But several states have their own laws barring employees from partisan political activity.

NEW OFFICER—Spears Carpet Mills, Inc., has named Mrs. Bobby Feathers secretary-treasurer for the company; the announcement was made by President Grayson E. Spears.

Mrs. Feathers is now personnel director for the mill and is a member of the board of directors. She was employed by the company in the spring of 1972.

She and her husband, William, make their home in McCaskill; they have two daughters, Pam, 16 and Susie, 14.

Mrs. Feathers graduated from Blevins High School and Tyler Commercial College. She attended SMU in Dallas, Texas, Crozier Tech. in Dallas, Texas and Texarkana College in Texarkana, Texas.

Another F111 missing

SAIGON (AP) — Another U.S. F111 fighter-bomber was lost during a strike against North Vietnam early Tuesday, but the controversial swing-wing jets continued attacks against targets in the Hanoi corridor, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

It was the second F111 lost since the $15 million planes returned to the Vietnam war last month. The other loss, on Sept. 28, resulted in the planes being withdrawn from combat for six days of tests and evaluation.

North Vietnam reported that the second F111 was "blasted to pieces" over Vinh Phu Province northwest of Hanoi and the two crewmen were killed. The U.S. Command said the two fliers are listed as missing and the cause of the crash and the location are unknown.

The command also announced that an Air Force F4 Phantom crashed 10 miles north of its base at Ubon, Thailand, just before dawn today while returning from a strike against the North. The two crewmen were rescued, and no injuries were reported.

This raised to 114 the number of American planes the command has reported lost in operations against North Vietnam since the resumption of full-scale bombing last April. The Command lists a total of 124 U.S. airmen killed or captured in these crashes.

U.S. fighter-bombers made more than 280 strikes against North Vietnam on Tuesday, hitting the transportation system, depots and warehouses, the U.S. Command said.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the Saigon military region, said the "high point" of enemy attacks which began Oct. 5 had resulted in the occupation of 18 hamlets 14 to 22 miles north of Saigon. But he said government troops had retaken 15, while three are still contested.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Pyle made a flying tour of the area and reported numerous hamlets in ruins from ground fighting and bombing in the last 10 days.

Air strikes continued to hammer at known or suspected enemy positions, and ground contact continued between South Vietnamese and enemy forces north, west and east of Saigon, but otherwise the situation in the capital region was generally quiet.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon takes part today in ceremonies which designate the Treasury Building as one of Washington's national historical landmarks.

The ceremonies are scheduled for the south portico of the building, which was completed in 1869.

The only other federally occupied buildings in the capital older than Treasury are the White House and the Capitol.

of offenses punishable by two years in jail.

Cocker and the other six musicians were fined a total of $2,400 in Adelaide on Tuesday for the possession of drugs, including heroin and Indian hemp.

Forbes said the seven had been ordered to leave the country no later than noon Oct. 20. Cocker's group, on tour, had been scheduled to leave Australia Oct. 28.

CANBERRA (AP) — The Australian government is deporting British pop singer Joe Cocker and six members of his group following their conviction in Adelaide on drug charges.

Immigration Minister Dr. James Forbes told Parliament today the seven musicians had become liable for deportation under the Migration Act because they had been convicted PARIS (AP) — Pierre Susini, the French diplomat wounded during a U.S. bombing raid on Hanoi a week ago today, has been hospitalized in Paris for treatment of his injuries.

The French delegate-general in Hanoi, Susini arrived in Paris by air Tuesday, accompanied by his son and a doctor. He was on a stretcher.

His condition was not disclosed.

Tower says there is a national energy crisis

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said today there is a national energy crisis and shortages undoubtedly will become more severe.

"If all corrective actions could be implemented today, the domestic energy industry would be unable to meet the projected demand unless some miracle were to occur," Tower said.

"This is due to the long lead-time required to bring new energy sources on stream. For a country which depends on energy to the extent this country does, this is a crisis."

Tower said the nation has the raw energy resources but a negative economic, political and environmental climate has caused decreasing investments of risk capital in exploring for and developing untapped reserves of crude oil, natural gas and coal.

Tower's remarks were prepared for delivery before the concluding session of the 43rd meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Tower predicted new attacks on the petroleum industry can be expected within the new congress next year, including further attempts to reduce or eliminate oil's investment incentives.

"There are a number of corrective measures which must be initiated soon in order to achieve a more acceptable level of energy self-sufficiency," he said.

Tower said such measures include clear, consistent, and comprehensive federal energy policies, complete decontrol of federal price controls over gas sold into interstate commerce, and a smaller initial bonus and a larger royalty for federal lease sales so as to allow greater participation by independent operators.

He said at present, however, there does not appear to be any quick reversal for current trends.

"As a result, we will be forced to meet our energy deficits by importing oil from the only area in the Free World with a large enough surplus producing capacity to help us—the Middle East," he said.

Curfew imposed in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Patrols arrested scores of tardy pedestrians and motorists early today after President Salvador Allende ordered a nightly curfew in Santiago because of a week of strikes, street protests and violence.

Many of those arrested were allowed to go home after identifying themselves or convincing authorities they had not heard of the curfew.

Anthracite miners scratch for a living

By TOM TIEDE
TREMONT, Pa.—(NEA)—The Sharp Mountain Coal Mine is a big hole in a hill surrounded by dead logs, a leaning shack and several inches of anthracite goo. It looks deserted. But wait. A noise in the tunnel. Rumble. Rumble. The crew is coming. There he is.
The crew.
Norman Wolfe, 53, all 5 feet, 4 inches, 119 pounds of him.
Wolfe is the one-man gang of the Sharp Mountain Coal Mine. He is the pick man, the shovel man, the fellow who does the drilling, the one who fires the dynamite, the carpenter, the loader, the un-loader. Norman Wolfe, 53, 5 feet, 4 inches, 119 pounds. He is also the owner — and, along with a partner, Charles Lengle, he is the whole show in what is a rare, admirable tribute to man's cursed determination: bootleg coal mining.

NORM WOLFE and the Sharp Mountain mine... cool in the summer, warm in the winter.

Years ago, this area around Tremont, 465 square miles, was one of the most bustling mining areas in the nation. Fifty-eight large mines were operating at one juncture, employing 35,000 workers. Times were good. Coal was inexhaustible. Towns like Minersville and Coaldale were established. Places like Mt. Carbon were named in appreciation of the great black gifts from mother earth.
But enough became too much, as it often does. Mine owners became oppressive. Unions became greedy. And as the cost of taking the coal out, safely, increased, the number of people willing to pay the price decreased. In short, the bottom fell out of the richest anthracite lode in the world. Mines closed by the score. Workers moved away by the thousands. No body has been hired in deep mining here in the last decade. Major companies avoid the region like it had a high water level. About the only real big mining left is the relentless (tear and scar) drag-net operation known as stripping.

The industry is dead.
And yet. Rumble, rumble. Here is Norm Wolfe, what there is of him, buried in overalls, blackened with dust, peeking out from under a lamp-hat with his pick and shovel. One of a relative handful of men still scratching a living from an industry that was.
"Hello, Norm."
Nod.
"I'm a reporter."
Nod.
"Mind if I ask some questions?"
Nod.
Wolfe doesn't say much. But then, there's a reason. He's too busy to yak. As in few other endeavors, time to the coal bootlegger is money. Unlike other mining industries, anthracite digging is still a grunt and groan operation. With mechanization, a soft miner averages 70 tons of produce a day. With grunts and groans (hard coal mining doesn't lend itself to mechanization) an anthracite operator is lucky to get 10. So: Don't dally. Up at 5, in the mine before 7, drill blast, dig, load, knock down, pick it up, and cart it away for the daily bread.
Not surprisingly, the bread isn't always daily for bootleg miners. Wolfe, for example, gets $3 a ton for his effort. If his partner is working, they usually pull out between 15-20 tons. But that's not banking money. Out of it, they must pay a landlord 60 cents a ton for the right to dig in his mountain, they must pay a driver a living wage to cart the coal to the preparation plant, they must pay for the beams to support the drift, for the supplies to equip the premises, for the dynamite, for the generator, for the air equipment, for everything. "I'm lucky if I make $5,000 a year," says Wolfe, spitting out black phlegm. "You don't get much digging this stuff."

Indeed. You don't get much money. You don't get much anything. Except, too often, grief. "There's a lot of worry," says John Reilly, an official with the Independent Miners Union (1,500 members). First, there's the investment, which can run as high as $10,000. Then, once you start, if you don't meet the federal safety standards, there are the penalties, which can run as high as $10,000. Also, there are the dangers inherent to coal mining: accidents, which claim about two fatalities a year in this region; and disease, mainly black lung, which affects, to one degree or another, virtually everyone who works regularly in the mines (in one Pennsylvania County alone, Schuylkill, 11,000 people receive monthly allotments of black lung compensation).
Finally, for worries, there are the unknown coal veins themselves. They look imposing, but all too often turn out more bust than bonanza. Once, at another site, Norm Wolfe worked three weeks tunneling into a vein only to have it, and his investment, peter out before he could mine a dime. "You never know. You can't see the other side. It can pinch out, or drop below the water level, or just turn sour in quality and grade."

Still and all, despite the hardships, the bootleggers survive. For the present. And there is no danger, at least, that the earth will turn against them too. Clyde Mac-hamer, president of the Independent Miners Union, says the anthracite lode in Pennsylvania is still enormous. "There are 7 to 10 billion recoverable tons of it left right here below our feet. That's a couple centuries, still, of steady work."
And so, Norm Wolfe. And the others. In their Mom-and-Pop mines. The last of the doggedly self-reliant. Wolfe leans against his tunnel, coal dust sparkling in the light of his lamp, his ebony hands gripping a shovel; no smile, but some satisfaction. "It's not so bad in here. It's cool in the summer and nice and warm in the winter. It's not so bad." Then he coughs, and spits out more black phlegm.

Supplies diverted to China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources report that Communist freighters and tankers have diverted nearly 250,000 tons of supplies to China since the U.S. Navy closed North Vietnam's ports with minefields last May.
U.S. officials were unable to say how much of this tonnage actually has found its way into North Vietnam—the original destination—through pipelines and over roads exposed to heavy U.S. bombing.
They estimate the one-quarter-million tons represents about one-third of the supplies delivered by Russian and other Communist bloc ships directly to Haiphong and other North Vietnamese harbors in the comparable period last year.
Most of the 45 communist ships that reportedly discharged North Vietnam-bound cargo in Shanghai and several other Chinese ports over the past five months flew Soviet flags, the sources said.
Communist-bloc freighters or tankers have tried to pass through the minefields blocking Haiphong and other North Vietnamese harbors since the mines were sown by U.S. Navy planes in early May.
That was when President Nixon sought to cut off North Vietnam from outside sources of supply.
Although they are having grain-crop problems, the Russians apparently are continuing to send food to North Vietnam.
Pentagon sources said Soviet wheat flour represents about 20 per cent of the supplies put ashore in China for North Vietnam.
If it all got through to North Vietnam, this wheat flour would go far toward closing the normal gap between the rice and other foodstuffs which North Vietnam grows and what the population usually consumes.
How much of the Russian wheat flour is reaching North Vietnam by truck is anybody's guess. North Vietnam's roads and bridges leading toward China are prime targets for U.S. bombing attacks.
U.S. intelligence estimates that gasoline and other petroleum products constitute about one-third of the cargo unloaded in China for transshipment to North Vietnam.
Nearly half of the tonnage arriving in China by sea for transfer to North Vietnam is described by U.S. officials as general cargo, which could include trucks, weapons, machinery and other goods to keep North Vietnam going. Much of this travels from Europe in East German ships.

4 attend conference

Larry, Paul and Naida Patton, and Gary Palmer, were in Dallas over the weekend attending the semi-annual Caddo Area Explorer Officers Conference. They represented Explorer Post #2 of the Presbyterian Church of Hope and as it turned out they also represented southwest Arkansas since they were the only Arkansas Explorers present from outside Texarkana, Arkansas.
There were 34 young people from the council who drove to Dallas by cars for a day at the Texas State fair and a visit to the Oklahoma - Texas game.
Late Saturday evening they drove to the Sid Richards Scout Ranch near Bridgeport where they spent the night.
Sunday they spent the day planning the council's Explorer activities for the next six months. The activity will be a NasCar Road Rally for licensed teenage drivers in the Caddo Area Council.
The next officer's conference will be in March at the Scout Ranch.

RILEY IS ENDORSED

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Gazette has endorsed Lt. Gov. Bob Riley for a second term.
In an editorial in today's edition, the Gazette said it would be "cumbersome" to have a lieutenant governor of the opposite party than the governor.
The Gazette also has endorsed Gov. Dale Bumpers for a second term.

Leo G. Carroll, actor, is dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Leo G. Carroll, whose acting career began on the London stage in 1911 and continued through scores of movies and two popular American television series, is dead at 80.
Carroll died Monday at Presbyterian Hospital.
The British actor's movies included "Spellbound," "Suspicion," "Wuthering Heights" and "The House on 92nd Street."
He appeared on Broadway in plays including "The Late George Apley" and "Angel Street."
But perhaps his best known role was Cosmo Topper, a suburban banker and the title character of the long-running television comedy series of the 1950s. Later he appeared as Mr. Waverly, head of the secret organization in "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." series.
Survivors include his widow, Edith, a son and three granddaughters. Funeral services are pending.

McGovern 'hunting' in big states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is returning to his big-state campaign circuit today, hunting votes in Michigan and Ohio, two top-priority targets in his effort to overtake President Nixon.
McGovern heads for Detroit after a brief Washington stop to tape a 30-minute speech on economic issues for a network campaign telecast Friday night.
He is to appear tonight in Cleveland, for a statewide Ohio television appearance, and at a rally in Toledo.
McGovern campaigned Tuesday in Texas, and indicated he would be back before election day for another round of appearances in the only Southern state in which he is making a major push.

During two days there, he hammered at assertions that President Nixon and his campaigners put together a "sabotage squad" to harass Democratic campaigners.
"I do not enjoy that part of campaigning which comes from attacking the opposition," McGovern said in Fort Worth. "I'd much rather talk about the issues and principles in which I believe."
"But there are certain dangerous trends that have been set in motion by this present administration that we must talk about because they jeopardize the freedoms and constitutional rights on which our system of government depends," he said.
McGovern campaigners claimed to be heartened about their chances in Texas.

But John B. Connally, the Texan who heads Democrats for Nixon, said he considers the President's prospects there to be excellent.
McGovern has made criticism of Connally, and the people he describes as "the Texas oil billionaires," a fixture in most of his campaign rally speeches, although he didn't make a point of it during the Texas campaign swing.
At a Washington news conference Tuesday, Connally said: "I admire a fellow that'll go into a man's back yard and take him on. It may help him, we'll see."

While McGovern was taping his speech at the Capitol, his national campaign staff was at work opening the mail. Kirby Jones, spokesman for the McGovern headquarters, said the entire staff, from campaign manager Gary Hart down, was spending six hours opening a backlog of campaign mail.
Jones said 40,000 to 50,000 pieces of mail had piled up, containing an estimated $800,000 in donations. He said the letter-opening session was to get the contributions ready for deposit today.

Advise to farmers

Farmers who are counting on cool-season grasses and small grains to replace hay this winter should take advantage of soil moisture available in the fall, says Calvin Caldwell, county extension agent.
One of the best ways to do this is to make sure that plant food is not the limiting production factor, he said.
Soil tests are ideal for diagnosing acid soils and low levels of phosphorus and potassium. Lime and fertilizer applications should be made in the fall to correct these soil deficiencies, Caldwell said.
Nitrogen is also needed at planting time on most soils. As much as 40 pounds of actual nitrogen may be needed to overcome the amount that is "tied up" as soil plant roots and stems for the previous crop decay. Where soil moisture is adequate, up to 60 pounds of additional nitrogen may be applied in October or early November for maximum fall production. In one sense, says Mr. Caldwell, extra nitrogen can make up for late seeding.
Applications of more than 100 pounds of nitrogen in the fall could lead to nitrate poisoning or grass tetany in cattle. These problems can normally be avoided by holding fall nitrogen applications to a total of 80 to 100 pounds of actual nitrogen, then applying additional nitrogen in February or March for extra production.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The coyote or prairie wolf is native to North and Central America. Coyotes' keen senses and fast speed enable them to adapt quickly to changing conditions and allow them to survive despite the settling of much of their former habitats. The World Almanac notes. Though coyotes sometimes kill domestic animals they are valuable because they destroy many rodents.

Ban halt is requested

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — A Clarksdale chemical company filed suit in U.S. District Court here Tuesday seeking to halt a ban on domestic use of the insecticide DDT pending an environmental impact statement on the chemical.

Environmental Protection Agency head William Ruckelshaus has banned domestic use of DDT at the beginning of 1973 under an order issued in June.

The chemical is used extensively for insect control and is especially popular among cotton farmers. Critics have cited evidence that DDT does not break down and that it accumulates in animals, including humans.

Lawyers representing chemical companies also have asked the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to set aside a ruling against registration for sale of DDT products by manufacturers.

Twenty-seven chemical companies were involved in hearings on DDT before EPA administrators from August 1971 until March of this year. A hearing examiner ruled in favor of the companies' registrations of DDT products, but Ruckelshaus overturned the ruling.

The companies are asking the appeals court to overturn Ruckelshaus' decision and to reinstate the hearing examiner's decision in their favor, according to plaintiffs lawyer Robert C. Ackerly of Washington.

The district court suit asks that the ban be delayed until the EPA has complied with requirements the companies contend must be met.

The EPA contends it is not subject to requirements such as filing of an environmental impact statement on the order.

Coahoma Chemical Co., of Clarksdale is the only firm named in the suit, which would affect all of the companies.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Do fruits contain cholesterol?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My husband was told by his doctor to go on a low cholesterol diet for four months and then he would check him again. I know the foods to avoid like ice cream, gravy, chocolate, fried foods, etc., but I'm wondering about fruits when he is hungry (apples, oranges, and bananas, etc.). What about canned vegetables as long as they are packed in water. Can he drink beer?

Dear Reader—As far as cholesterol content is concerned, none of the vegetables or fruits or plants contain cholesterol. It's only animal products such as meats, dairy products, and eggs, that contain cholesterol. There is no reason why your husband couldn't eat fruits and vegetables and no reason from the cholesterol or fat point of view why he couldn't drink beer.

Your doctor may have wanted your husband to go on a low fat, low cholesterol diet since just limiting the cholesterol alone in the diet often won't accomplish so much. Such a diet would have to consist of fruits, vegetables, lean meats (like round steak with all the excess fat removed), fish, chicken and low fat or fortified skim milk, and if your husband needs to lose weight, he should avoid all high calorie foods, including concentrated sweets, and fat of any kind whether it is vegetable or animal.

Without controlling obesity most diet programs are doomed to failure in preventing fatty deposits in the arteries (atherosclerosis). A gradual fat reduction with continued prevention of obesity combined with a low fat, low cholesterol diet seems to work best.

The most commonly eaten food high in cholesterol is the egg yolk. One yolk contains about 250 milligrams. A three and one half ounce serving of lean beef contains only 70 milligrams.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am quite concerned with a skin condition I contracted after taking birth control pills for two years. My face became quite blotched and although I have been off the pill now for two years, the pregnancy mask which the doctor said would lighten up and disappear has failed to do so and my face is still vividly marked. What can I do or take to correct this disfiguring condition?

Dear Reader—I am afraid that there isn't anything you can take. This complexion problem is the same that affects some women during pregnancy and is exactly the same as the pregnancy mask that you referred to. It is an increase in the normal pigmentation produced by the skin. In a sense the spots are giant freckles. What you're up against then is the same question as how to remove freckles. Staying out of the sun will probably help. If you're exposed to the sun, and depending on the distribution of the spots, you may be able to cover the individual spots with any form of sun screen while not covering the rest of the skin. This will help to even the tanning of the skin and may be of some benefit. I wish I could be more encouraging, but unfortunately, that's nature. They do tend to diminish or go away in the course of time in most women who quit taking the birth control pill or after pregnancy.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on cholesterol send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

Former city manager is guest at Kiwanis Club

Appearing on a program arranged by Kiwanian Larry Patterson, Garland Medders, former city manager, spoke to the Kiwanis Club at their Tuesday's meeting and discussed Hope's water and power situation.

For years Hope has depended upon an underground water source for all her needs. This underground supply is adequate for present needs even with new and expanded industries, but the time is very near when Hope must have a surface water source.

"All agree that Millwood is the very best source of water to be had, and it is available for our use. There's only one problem, that of getting the water from Millwood to Hope", said Medders. Engineering studies made some fifteen years ago show that a pick-up station, a pipeline, and a treatment plant would have cost 3 1/2 to 5 millions of dollars at that time. This figure is now in excess of 7 millions. This cost is prohibitive when measured against the revenues that may be expected from the sale of water.

Other surface water sites have been explored. One north of Hope was thought to be ideal until testing of the soil determined that the soil was entirely unsuitable for holding water behind a dam.

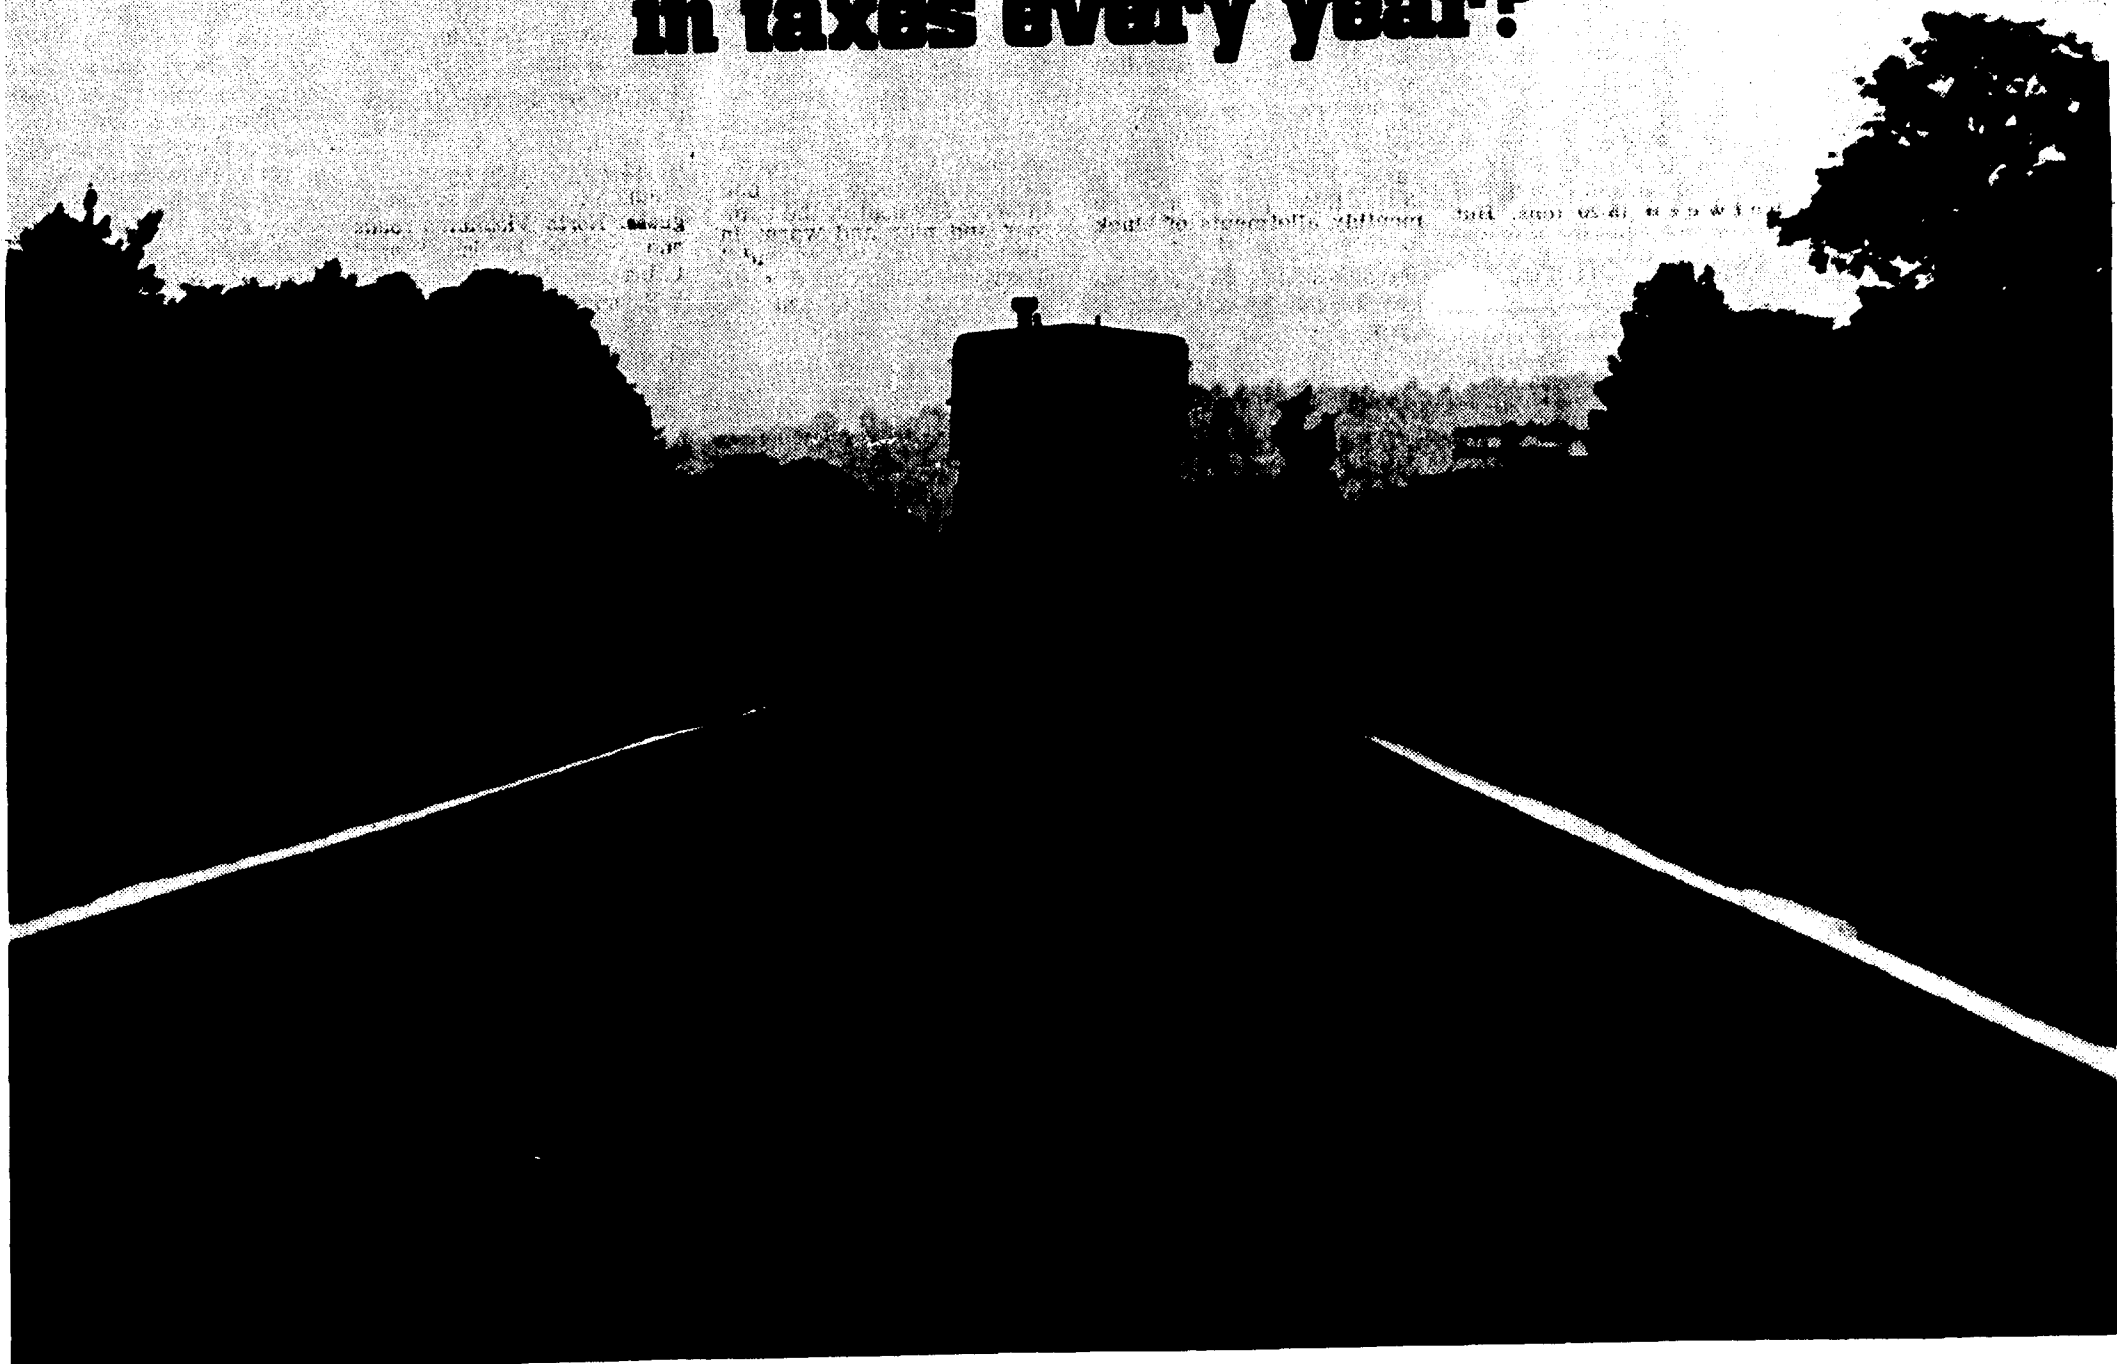

A site west of town has been examined and was thought to be quite suitable until health authorities pointed out contamination problems. The Water and Light Commission, working with the State Health Department, Engineers, and Medders are exploring every possibility for Hope to acquire a supply of surface water.

At peak the old light plant could produce only 6,000 KW of electric power. Today one industry in our area requires more power than the old plant could have provided. When Hope started buying power from A. P. & L. the load was about 5,500 KW. Today the available supply is 30,000 KW, and a second sub-station is in the planning stage to be located in the Oakhaven area. By having two sub-stations or distribution points, each with 30,000 KW capacity, Hope will be in far better condition powerwise should a storm knock out one of the stations.

"Hope is growing. Her needs for water and power are growing. We plan to meet these needs", said Medders.

Guests at Tuesday's meeting were E. P. Williams of El Dorado, visiting Kiwanian George Covington of Conway, and Key Clubbers Tim Hogan and Mike Downs.

What business employs over 9000 people, and services and pays over $5 million in taxes every year?

ASTRO-GRAPH

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, Oct. 18

YOUR
TODAY

Measure your new strength carefully. Don't extend beyond your mental and physical capabilities. Business contacts are likely to be sympathetic for you.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19): Today's goals are well within your reach. Daydreaming will dilute your advantages, waste valuable opportunities.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20): Your major needs get a boost from compassionate friends. You're lucky, provided your request is not for financial assistance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make changes you've been considering. Too much discussion of your plans with others will only leave you more confused.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Negative thinking is likely to upset you. Air the problem frankly with friends to resolve the issue.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Too much emphasis on satisfying social whims could be costly and wasteful. Deal in practical matters today.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Don't let domestic disturbances dampen your day. Associations outside the home promise greater pleasure and benefits.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23): A day that may require major decisions. Let logic and reason monitor and direct your moves.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): Share today with that special someone close to your heart. A deeper, more meaningful relationship could result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21): Today has its bewilderment, confusion. In final analysis, conditions work for your benefit.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): You can expand your interest and influence. Don't let petty jealousies of others deter you.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19): Don't rely too heavily on your friends today. Achievement is gained by being your own man and working quietly alone.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20): An important friend proves to be your greatest ally today. Don't weaken the relationship with confusing requests.

The Railroads of Arkansas.

You know that we play an essential role in providing safe, low-cost, reliable transportation service. But maybe you didn't realize that we help Arkansas' economy and growth in many other ways, too.

Like providing a significant share of taxes that finance schools and other government services statewide.

Like being one of the state's leading employers.

And like being a major buyer of Arkansas products and services. For instance, we annually purchase about $16 million worth of oil, timber, rock, asphalt, parts, solvents, shop machinery, office supplies—the list is endless. And so are the Arkansas services that we use.

For example, we generally employ Arkansas contractors for major construction work and our automotive fleets are maintained in the state.

The Railroads of Arkansas, we're pulling for you. It's not just a slogan—it's a fact.

The Railroads of Arkansas
are pulling for you.

Here is a Jeff Riddens match point problem. You are playing in the finals of the blue ribbon pairs and have reached six no-trump.

Never mind how you go there. There were as many ways to bid the hand as there were players in the event and the one thing you can be sure of is that everyone is in six or seven spades or no-trump.

You win the queen of diamonds lead and run off your spades and clubs to leave dummy with the ace-queen of hearts.

You have watched your opponents' discards and are still missing the king of diamonds and king-10-eight of hearts.

You lead a heart and West plays the 10. If his other card is the king of diamonds, (he might well have led the queen from king-queen-jack) it doesn't matter what you play. You are going to make exactly six. If his other card is the king of hearts a finesse gives you an overtrick; if it is the eight of hearts East will have blanked the king early in the defense and if you finesse you will go down one at your slam contract. What do you do?

The answer is that you rise with dummy's ace and insure your contract.

If West holds the heart king you have chucked a trick but the loss won't translate into many match points. All spade declarers will have played a backward spade finesse against the king in the East hand and will have been held to 12 tricks. Six no-trump will beat all of them.

Seven no-trump bidders will have played West for the heart king and made their contract to beat you in any event.

CHORD

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 8 6 5 4 10 2 ♦ K 5 ♣ A J 6 4

What do you do now?
A—Your partner is showing the ace of diamonds and trying for a slam. Maybe there is seven. Bid six diamonds to show second round diamond control.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding three hearts, your partner has raised you from two to three spades. What do you do now?

Kissinger to meet with South VN officials in Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger was flying to Saigon today to join American and South Vietnamese officials in a major Indochina political and military review, reinforcing speculation of a possible breakthrough in negotiations for a cease-fire.

Kissinger came from Paris where he held another secret meeting Tuesday with the North Vietnamese. It was his 20th trip to Paris for secret negotiations. Earlier today, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the new Army chief of staff, arrived for a week-long military assessment of the war. Both Kissinger and Abrams were scheduled to meet with President Nguyen Van Thieu, but officials said they did not know. Abrams conferred after his arrival with Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, and Gen.

John W. Vogt, the 7th Air Force commander responsible for air strikes against North Vietnam. Kissinger was scheduled to return to Washington after meeting with Thieu. The chief stumbling block in the peace negotiations has been Thieu's insistence that he would never accept the Communist demand for a coalition government. There was speculation that Kissinger would try to convince the president to agree to some sort of coalition or dual government with the Viet Cong to break the deadlock. Thieu meanwhile, has recalled Ambassador Tran Kim

Phuong from Washington and Pham Dang Lam from the Paris peace talks and has been conferring with them and other top advisers since Sunday. Officials in both Saigon and Washington will not disclose the substance of all these talks, saying only that they are in a serious and sensitive stage. But diplomats in Washington who claim knowledge of the Paris peace talks have raised the possibility of a joint U.S.-North Vietnamese announcement before the U.S. presidential election on Nov. 7. Reports from Washington say the American position centers on working out a cease-fire that would result in the release of U.S. prisoners of war and a political settlement that would not give the appearance of selling out Thieu. — If you hear eight hoots while walking in the woods one night, it's probably the "eight-hooter," a common name for the barred owl.
